
About the Contributors

BERNADETTE BAILEY is the Librarian at the American Federation of Teachers. She has worked at the AFT since 1989 and holds a M.L.S. from Catholic University.

MARGARET A. CHAPLAN is an Associate Professor and the Labor and Industrial Relations Librarian at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. She was guest editor for an issue of Library Trends on "Employee Organizations and Collective Bargaining in Libraries," and is the author of "The Secondary Literature on the National Labor Relations Board: a Bibliographic Essay," a chapter in The National Labor Relations Board: a Guide to Research (in press).

THOMAS JAMES CONNORS is Curator of the National Public Broadcasting Archives, University of Maryland, College Park. From 1982–87 he was assistant archivist at the George Meany Memorial Archives, AFL-CIO. In the ensuing years he has been involved in various labor oral history and archives projects. He is the author of two articles on labor archives issues. In 1997 he led the Labor Archives Project, a coordinated research effort by a group of labor archivists to assess the status of labor archives in the United States. The Labor Archives Project was supported by the Bentley Historical Library Research Fellowship Program for the Study of Modern Archives.

DANIEL GOLODNER is the American Federation of Teachers Archivist and Webmaster at the Walter P. Reuther Library of Labor and Urban Affairs at Wayne State University. He has a B.A. in History from Virginia Commonwealth University and a M.L.S., with a concentration in archives, from Wayne State University. He has given lectures and workshops as well as presented papers and written on a wide array of topics including records management, labor history, and Web development in archives. He also teaches a course on the History of U.S. Social Movements at Wayne State University for the Labor Studies program.

EDWARD J. HERTENSTEIN is an Assistant Professor of Labor and Industrial Relations, assigned to the Labor Education Program at the Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. He teaches Labor on the Internet to union members across the state of Illinois, and his research focuses on blue-collar use of the Internet. He received a B.S. in Labor Studies from Indiana University, and an A.M. and Ph.D. from the University of Illinois.

ELIZABETH ANN HUBBARD is a Senior Associate at the American Federation of Teachers in Washington, D.C., where she researches and writes about issues in higher education. She has a Ph.D. and a M.L.S. from the University of Pittsburgh and a bachelor's degree in education from the University of Maryland. Dr. Hubbard has more than fifteen years experience in academic and medical libraries and five years experience in public libraries. In her previous positions, she has been a public school teacher, the Director of Planning and Development at the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, the Director of the Medical Resource Center at the University of Pittsburgh Cancer Institute, a Manager of Staff Development at the University of Maryland, and a researcher at the Library of Congress. She is presently a member of the AFL-CIO/ALA Joint Committee on Library Services to Labor Groups.

ARTHUR S. MEYERS has been the Director of Russell Library, the public library in Middletown, Connecticut, since 1997. His recent writings include, "A Lot in Common": The League of Women Voters and Public Libraries" (2000), published in Public Libraries; "Building a Partnership: Library Service to Labor" (1999), in American Libraries; and several articles on ethnicity and the Open Forum lecture movement. He has served as President, ALA Reference and Adult Services Division (now RUSA), and is a Contributing Reviewer with Reference Books Bulletin. His ALA awards include the John A. Sessions Memorial Award for library service to labor.

F. HOWARD NELSON is the Senior Associate Director of the AFT Research Department for the American Federation of Teachers and holds a master's degree in Economics and a Ph.D. in Educational Policy. He prepares the annual fifty-state salary survey of the AFT. Among other responsibilities, he specializes in analyzing budgets, international education data, teacher salary surveys, vouchers, charter schools, and analyzing private contracting in public schools. Dr. Nelson has published over three dozen articles and book chapters.

DEBORAH JOSEPH SCHMIDLE is History and Information Science Bibliographer and Reference Librarian at the Dewey Graduate Library, University at Albany, as well as an adjunct faculty member in the School of Information Science and Policy at the University at Albany. Prior to this position she spent more than four years at Cornell University's School of Industrial and Labor Relations as an Outreach Services Librarian. She holds a B.S. in History from Binghamton University and a M.L.S. from Syracuse University. As Outreach Services Librarian, she designed and taught Internet research training workshops for labor union members human resource professionals in various cities throughout the northeast.

She is cochair of the ALA/AFL-CIO Joint Committee on Library Service to Labor Groups, president-elect of the Upstate New York Chapter of the Special Libraries Association, government relations chair of the Eastern New York Association of College and Research Libraries, and a member of the Policy Information Network of New York State.

Presentations and publications include, "Empowerment Online: Creating an Internet Training Program for Labor Unions" (1999), delivered at the 52nd annual conference of the Committee of Industrial Relations Librarians, International Labour Organisation, Geneva, Switzerland; "Labor Unions and the Internet" (1999), published in Economic Notes; "Resources for Labor History Month" (2000), coauthored with Ann Sparanese and published in Booklist; and "Designing and Delivering Internet Instruction to Labor Unions: A Practical Guide" (2002) in The CyberUnion Handbook: Transforming Labor Through Computer Technology, edited by Arthur B. Shostak.

ANN C. SPARANESE is the Head of Adult and Young Adult Services at Englewood (New Jersey) Public Library, where she manages a busy reference department. She received her B.A. in English at the State University of New York at Buffalo and her M.L.S. at Rutgers University. She served two terms on the AFL-CIO/ALA Joint Committee on Library Service to Labor Groups and chaired the ALA's John A. Sessions Memorial Award Committee. Sparanese has written on libraries and labor studies for the library press and publishes a "Selected Bibliography for a Public Library Labor Studies Collection" on her library's Web site: <http://www.inglewoodlibrary.org/newsres.html>. She is also a steward in her union, RWDSU Local 108, AFL-CIO, and a vice president of the Bergen Country (New Jersey) Central Trades and Labor Council.

GAYE WILLIAMS is the Assistant to the President for Communications and Technology at SEIU, the Service Employees International Union. She directs SEIU's Communications and Technology and Campaign Communications Departments. With 1.5 million members, SEIU is the largest union in North America, representing workers in health care, building service, and public service.